Social event

What does Thursday at NEM have in store? An eye-popping program of creative and culinary delights!

It all takes place at Kunsten, home to one of Denmark's largest collections of experimental art. The museum is striking enough in itself. A structure of angular white marble, it was designed by Finnish architect Alvar Aalto - Google his chair "Stool 60", you'll probably recognise it ;)

Our evening begins with a series of workshops held among the museum's exhibitions and sculpture park. You'll explore the special place the eye holds in art history. And you'll try your hand at Suminagashi, the Japanese practice of creating marble-like ink paintings.

After that, it's time to eat! We'll dine at Brasserie Kunsten. The menu is built around the finest seasonal produce, with classic dishes given a modern twist by head chef Thomas Mathiesen.
